Harrisburg, PA – June 7, 2010 – CyberPatrol LLC, a leading developer of web filtering solutions for families, educators and business, today announced CyberPatrol Online Protection Pro, a new version of customizable Cloud Managed Service specifically designed and priced for small and medium business (SMBs).

This new product allows businesses to monitor and filter online activity and online chat in the work place. Administrators can easily customize filtering capabilities by selecting from 44 categories or by creating a custom block and allow list. Administrators receive email activity reports that can monitor for sexual content and harassment. Custom user settings can be enforced at the individual user level. Managing filtering requirements is easily accomplished through a single online interface that can be accessed remotely from any PC that is connected to the Internet.

The Nielson Company reports that more than 21 million Americans accessed adult websites on work computers in March 2010. That represents 29% of working adults. “What people do online in a business environment can result in detrimental consequences in the workplace that could threaten security or even have legal implications. This in the cloud service cuts costs directly and indirectly in the form of higher employee productivity, increased security and lower maintenance costs,” said John Sancin, President and COO of CyberPatrol.

CyberPatrol Online Protection PRO starts at $172 for a 5 user license for a one year subscription. Key features of this service include filtering by user or PC, custom profiles, reports and email alerts on activity, and Safe Search locked on the highest level to block inappropriate images easily found during Google searches. All CyberPatrol products come with a 30 money back guarantee. Try CyberPatrol Online Protection Pro for free for 30 days at <http://www.cyberpatrol.com/cponlineprotection.asp>
